No.	Questions	Answers
1	Is there a particular format that PDE would like bidders to use for their proposal? Are there other requirements that bidders must consider (e.g. page limit)?	Format should be either Word/Excel or other commonly used office software product format. There is no page limit.
2	Is there a particular format that PDE would like bidders to use for their budget? Should the budget be submitted separately from the technical proposal?	Format should be either Word/Excel or other commonly used office software product format. If submitted as an attachment, the budget should be a separate document. All bidders must use SRM to enter bids into each the line item.
3	Are there any key milestone dates the PDE expects the vendor to incorporate into their development plan/schedule?	The milestone dates should reflect timely delivery of items to allow for the process of PDE review, vendor edits based upon PDE review and feedback, and final delivery of items for posting on the SAS portal.
4	Please describe the review process that PDE will conduct prior to the final delivery of items, the format of feedback from PDE, and the expectation of the vendor following this review.	Upon receipt of items from the contractor, PDE the PDE content advisor will review each item and provide written feedback where necessary. It is the expectation that the vendor will revise as directed and communicate with the PDE content advisor to clarify or discuss the feedback.
5	Other than a difference in the number of points, what is the difference between a CR item and an OE item?	There is no difference.
6	In addition to multiple-choice items, would PDE also like to have multiple-select items developed?	No
7	Is the Commonwealth seeking a work-for-hire relationship in which the Commonwealth would retain exclusive rights to the items for a much higher overall development cost? Or is the Commonwealth interested in the vendor maintaining ownership of the items at a reduced development cost?	PDE would assume ownership of the items.
