Roadside Type

THE McALLISTER FAMILY
OPHTHALMIC LEGACY

Near this site in 1796, John McAllister Sr. opened America's first optical shop and began a family tradition of innovation in optics and eye care. John Sr. was a pioneer of opticianry. His son John Jr. became the first American hospital optician. Third generation William, working at Wills Eye Hospital, was the first to teach refraction to ophthalmologists, and his son Francis was a founder of the American Optometric Association in 1898.
